

DRM Family Law Group: Post-Divorce Matters

At Downs Rachlin Martin PLLC (DRM), the experienced and dedicated family law team can assist you with the full range of Vermont family law and post-divorce matters, whether or not you have used our services in the past.

A large portion of our practice is devoted to post-divorce matters, including the enforcement or defense of applications to modify existing divorce decrees in the areas of:

- custody
- visitation
- child support
- spousal support

While one would like to think that a decree of divorce is final in all regards, a substantial and unanticipated change in circumstance often requires a review of the final decree. Additionally, the simple reality is that not all parties uphold their obligations and, unfortunately, applications to enforce the terms of a decree are common.

DRM's family law attorneys provide first-rate, cost-effective client service.

Led by veteran attorney Caryn Waxman, DRM's family law team includes six attorneys and two legal professionals offering sharp legal skills and comprehensive services in a broad spectrum of family law matters.

Keenly aware of the emotionally-charged nature of most family law issues, our family law team responds rapidly to clients' needs, making every effort to ensure that you are informed about the status of your case and what steps are to be taken next.
